DESCRIPTION This module computes the e-value and h-value as the number of expected and observed hits for a given word length. However, the actual number of words in the genome being searched for is usually different to the genome being searched. For example, if you have a protein search, you want the protein itself, as well as those parts of the genome that align to it. These are often called "quasi-exact" matches. You can tell FASTA which number of words to search for by using the parameter "-o". The default is to search for all words of length 3 and up, which will be known as "exact matches". To search for words of length 3 and up which are "quasi-exact matches", use "-o length". This option works by computing the e-value and h-value as the number of expected and observed hits for a given word length. The h-value is then divided by the total number of possible words. KEYENUM Description: DESCRIPTION Lets you define the numbers of words to search for. NUM_WORDS This parameter defaults to 1. It can be set to more or less than 1 to allow the ktup parameter to be adjusted in order to search for a set number of words. NUM_WORD_HITS This parameter defaults to 0. It can be set to more or less than 0 to allow the ktup parameter to be adjusted in order to search for a set number of words. ONLY_WORDS This parameter defaults to FALSE. If TRUE, then only exact word matches are reported. If FALSE, then exact, quasi-exact and non-exact matches are reported. NUMBER_OF_HIT_RECORDS This parameter defaults to 0. It can be set to more or less than 0 to change the number of record (locus) entries that are output to the result-file. The actual number of words that are searched for is given by the ktup parameter. LIST_ONLY This parameter defaults to FALSE. If TRUE, then the results are output only. Otherwise, they are output in the format of a FASTA file. MAP_ONLY This parameter defaults to FALSE. If TRUE, then a one-to-one mapping is output to a text file.
