This fun tool shows the "compatibility" level between you and another person, based on a random percentage generator. It comes packed with limited features, suitable to all types of users. The interface of the application is represented by a heart-shaped frame with a red background. All you have to do is type in two names in the primary panel and press the Enter key. Love Meter Gadget shall display a random percentage on the screen, which presumably represents the compatibility level between the two people. Unfortunately, Love Meter Gadget does not comprise other options or configurable settings of its own. But, thanks to the default options provided by the operating system, you can make the frame stay on top of other windows, increase its size, as well as set its opacity level to a preset value, ranging from 20% to 100%. Love Meter Gadget is very light on the system CPU and memory, without affecting the computer's overall performance. It has a good response time and works well, without causing the operating system to hang, crash or pop up error dialogs. On the downside, Love Meter Gadget has not been updated for a very long time. Summary: Pros: Simple to use cons: no other options not updated for a very long time Bottom Line: Love Meter Gadget is a simple-to-use gadget developed for entertainment purposes. Random Hearts - "Random heart" is a tool to show how compatible you are with your "random heart." It displays a heart image which randomly shows a heart and a point heart. The heart image changes every time you use this tool. The point heart is displayed when you first enter Love Meter Gadget or when the heart starts moving randomly. When you enter Love Meter Gadget, the points will be shown according to their values. Point hearts have a limited number of points which can be used for this purpose. The number of points depends on the values of point hearts. The more points a point heart has, the more points it can be used for. The color of the point hearts depends on the values of point hearts. New Windows Vista is here and with it comes a lot of new features. One of the coolest features of all is virtual folders. Here is how virtual folders can be created in Windows Vista. To begin with, create a virtual folder on the desktop: Hold down the Windows Logo key and press the R key, and then click on the New from current location icon on the desktop. In the File Types dialog box, click on Add and browse to the folder where you want to store your files. Click OK to add the folder, which now appears in the list of folders. Once you have created virtual folders, you can access them just like any other folder. You can also turn them on and off from the desktop icon. You can also move them by dragging them from the desktop. To change the way virtual folders look, right-click on the icon in the list of folders, select Properties, then click on the Appearance tab. You can customize the icon of a virtual folder by changing its size, color, and transparency level. You can even use icons other than the ones you chose to create virtual folders. Click on the browse button to browse the icons of the desired folder, then click the drop-down menu next to the button to select the folder. Take Note of Virtual Folders, they have some limitations, you can use them with the change of your mind, however. This article will help you Virtual Folders in Windows 7 After you have installed Windows 7, you can easily create and access your virtual folders. Step 1: Create the Virtual Folder Right-click on the desktop and click on New > From current location. In the dialog box, right-click on the Disk option
