Q: Why can't I use object-oriented style to create this constructor? I need to create a Password checker in Java. All the other similar questions that I've seen on Stackoverflow seem to have some sort of major flaw in their solution. I'm having a hard time figuring out what's wrong with my code, so my question is: What is wrong with my code? I've run it through eclipse and it compiles without errors or warnings. Also, my teacher and the textbook have not mentioned anything about abstract classes, which I'm wondering if that's why this won't work.

import java.util.Scanner; public class Homework4 { public static void main(String[] args) { Scanner input = new Scanner(System.in);
```

```
System.out.println("Please enter a password.");
String password = input.nextLine();
```
