Tag Archives: Climate change As the climate changes, people are moving to the coast. Coastlines are more crowded and are increasingly vulnerable. And as the coast changes, it will be harder for people to get there. The maps show the intensity of house prices in Germany, as well as their age. They show the direction of migration towards the coast. Data source: HSH.de This year, Germany will host the largest climate conference in history. Germany is hosting COP24. And the German government is targeting 1.5 billion euros for climate friendly projects. In light of the fact that people are leaving Germany to seek refuge in low-lying places and in cyclone areas, the German government could also help people relocate to low-lying places. Data source: HSH.de A lot of people are leaving the southern states of the US because of rising sea levels. Many coastal cities and states in the US are struggling with sea level rise, storm surges, and flooding. Even if climate policies cannot solve the problem of climate change, they can still help. Data source: HSH.de All in all, the new findings show that this trend is likely to continue and worsen. If we have a better understanding of the effect of climate change, we will be better able to deal with it. More than half of the 5.2 million Germans living in low-lying coastal and flood-prone areas will have to be relocated or subsidised to move to higher ground if environmental risks should ever materialise, according to the German Environment and Climate Protection Ministry. In addition to that, this would mean that at least 2.6 million people could lose their housing. The evaluation further underscores the fact that Germany is one of the least prepared countries of the world when it comes to crises. Protecting children and infrastructure from flood waters is also a priority for the government, according to the ministry. A measure currently under debate in parliament would subsidise the relocation of households and their businesses from the coast and low-lying areas. The HSH survey shows that a high number of Germans will suffer if they do not build new, protection-intensive, buildings along the coast. Furthermore, the survey results also show that the responsibility for protecting the population and infrastructure will lie almost exclusively with private households. The Federal Ministry of the Environment said: "The middle classes may be deemed responsible for the state of
