Q: how to combine events from different selectors in jquery? I have a function function showOk() { $('div.panel, div.big, div.content').hide(); $('div.box').show(); } $('#ok').click(function() { showOk(); }) $('#cancel').click(function() { showOk(); }) I want to combine them as a single function. I tried function showOk() { $('div.panel, div.big, div.content').hide(); $('div.box').show(); } $('#ok').click(function() { showOk(); $('#cancel').click(); }) $('#cancel').click(function() { showOk(); }) how can I combine them? A: You can simply use preventDefault() and use it to both event: function showOk() { $('div.panel, div.big, div.content').hide(); $('div.box').show(); } $('#ok').click(function(event) { event.preventDefault(); showOk(); }); $('#cancel').click(function(event) { event.preventDefault(); showOk(); }); A: You're using two different ways to bind an event. You can try function showOk() { $('div.panel, div.big, div.content').hide(); $('div.box').show(); } $('#ok').click(function(e){ e.preventDefault(); showOk(); }); $('#cancel').click(function(e){ e.preventDefault(); showOk(); }); Also, avoid naming your functions all upper case.
